Santa Fe Bridge

Local businessmen secured a government charter for a bridge in the late 1850s. They held onto the charter for thirty-odd years and offered it to the Santa Fe with the stipulation that they cross at Fort Madison. Santa Fe took Fort Madison’s offer and started to bridge the Mississippi in 1887. On April 27, 1888 the first train crossed the original structure into Illinois. The current 3,140 foot long bridge was built to replace the 1887 structure and was completed in 1927. With a 525 foot swing span, it is the largest double decker swing span bridge in the world. The bridge is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and the Library of Congress Historic American Engineering Record.

Engine #2913

A.T. & S.F. Steam Engine 2913, located in Riverview Park, was given to the City by the Santa Fe Railroad in 1959. In April of 1960 the engine was dedicated during the 72nd anniversary of the Santa Fe’s first through train to Chicago and Kansas City. The 708,000 lb. engine, built in 1944, had been used to haul war equipment in the western states.

Santa Fe Depot Museum Complex

Also known as the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Depot, it was built in 1910. This mission style depot is the star attraction of the museum run by the NLCHS. Also available at the complex, are the Santa Fe Engine 2913, a Santa Fe Way Car, The Railway Express Agency Building, The Santa Fe Freight Office and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway Depot.

The North Lee County Historical Society is available 360 days a year to give tours and greet visitors. Centrally located in the Santa Fe Depot Museum at Avenue H & 10th Street, they maintain extensive catalogs of historical records, documents, photography & artifacts. They also schedule tours for the following locations throughout the area.
Historic Park-to-Park Walking Tour

Fort Madison Historic Park-to-Park District offers magnificent, well preserved architecture. The streets are lined with grand Victorians and Post Renaissance architecture. There are more than 80 architectural marvels throughout the region, such as the Atlee House, pictured here. Architectural Tour Maps are available at the NLCHS.

North Lee County Courthouse & 1867 Jail

Located at the corner of Avenue F & 7th Street, is the oldest active court house in Iowa. Built in the early 1840s, it cost approximately $12,000 to complete. The four immense Tuscan columns accent the Greek Revival architecture. Located adjacent to the courthouse is the Lee County 1867 jail. The jail closed in the 1970s, after being used for more than 100 years.

Brush College

Located 2 miles north of Fort Madison, Brush College was built over a hundred years ago to replace the original log one-room school on approximately the same site. It has been re-equipped with furnishings from the 1885-1890s. It is open for tours by making arrangements with the Society at 319-372-7661.

In 1839, 16 years after the demise of the military outpost, Fort Madison was chosen as the site for the Iowa Territorial Prison. Since that time it has been a fixture of Fort Madison that has defined the city. This institution is not only significant to Fort Madison, it is an intricate part of the development of our nation and state. It has the notoriety of being the oldest continually used prison west of the Mississippi River.

The inmates who were initially housed at the prison were kept in tarp-covered trenches. They also supplied the labor that built the penitentiary. The original cell block still stands behind the prison walls. These structures and many others are listed on the National Register of historic places.

Now referred to as Iowa State Penitentiary (ISP), it has a capacity for 550 inmates and has historically housed the most notorious criminals within the Iowa penal system. Prisoners who were convicted of capital murder were executed in the gallows. Its walls contain stories of prison breaks, riots and hauntings.

At one time, ISP was a self-sustaining prison. They produced their own food, their own garments and their own furnishings. Textile mills, furniture making, and many other industries have given inmates the opportunity to learn valuable skills to help them acclimate back into society when released. There are classrooms and libraries to offer them education.

At one time the prison even supported football and baseball teams. The prison band would play at community functions. They allowed sociology tours from area schools and hosted concerts for the general public. For a great part of their history, many of the inmates worked at jobs outside of the prison walls.

The Department of Corrections has completed a state-of-the-art Maximum Security Unit north of Fort Madison. Once the prisoners are relocated, these historic structures will be available for redevelopment and repurposing. With buildings more than 175 years old; stories, historical documents and pictures, ISP holds the key to a very unique opportunity for Fort Madison. Old Highway 61, which is part of The Great River Road, passes right by ISP. Visitors can see the massive structure and catch glimpses of the guards in their towers. This massive edifice on the banks of the Mississippi River has spent almost 2 centuries dedicated to the housing and rehabilitation of Iowa’s inmates.
Chief Blackhawk

Chief Blackhawk’s first encounter with US troops, which happened within what is now the city limits, is Iowa’s only true battlefield of The War of 1812. Chief Blackhawk was a central figure in our territory even after his reign as chief of the Sauk Indians ended. He was the keynote speaker at the 4th of July Celebration of 1838, when the city celebrated their incorporation into the territory of Wisconsin, prior to Iowa becoming a state. It was during this speech that he shared the history of his life along the Mississippi and his love for his homeland. Shortly after giving this speech, Blackhawk passed away, leaving his legacy behind, as a part of our historic past.

Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railway

1856 brought the railroad into town! In 1888 the connection between the east and west coast finally occurred, linking Fort Madison as the major hub between Los Angeles and the rest of the United States. In 1995 the Santa Fe became known as the Burlington Northern Santa Fe, following a merger of the two railways. Between the rail system and the Mississippi River, large portions of the U.S. Gross national product pass through, making us an intricate part of our nation’s commerce. Railroad enthusiasts can watch 80 plus trains on a daily basis. The railroad is part of our community and part of our hometown feel.

Fort Madison's founders mapped parcels of land with lush green grass and tall white oaks as places for neighbors to gather. As you walk their paths, history and nostalgia can be found in the gazebos, river views, trails and fountains that make Fort Madison’s parks a place of peace and relaxation.

Old Settler’s Park

Old Settler’s Park was named in honor of the annual reunion of the Old Settler's Association and is Fort Madison’s oldest established park. With a festive replica bandstand and a memorial commemorating Chief Blackhawk, it is a quaint backdrop for family picnics, concerts and walks through the park.

Central Park

Originally named Lower Square, the park has had a few modifications through the years. With a refurbished gazebo and foundation, Central Park is home to the City Band during the summer months for free community concerts. It is an ideal location for families to gather and a perfect spot for outdoor wedding pictures.

Riverview Park

Riverview Park’s 35 acres is Fort Madison’s showpiece for all to enjoy with its open view of the Mighty Mississippi River. The park is home to many attractions including the Santa Fe Engine 2913, Old Fort Madison Replica, Kuhlmeier Reflecting Pond, Riverview Marina and the Veterans Memorial.

Rodeo Park

Fort Madison’s largest park with 234 acres, Rodeo Park offers hiking, walking and biking trails; camping and picnicking sites, along with two separate 18-hole disc golf courses. Rodeo Park hosts the annual Tri-State Rodeo and has the Fort Madison Municipal Airport located at its north end.

Ivanhoe Park

Ivanhoe Park is located on the west end of Fort Madison and has for many years been the location for baseball teams to compete. The newer additions to the park include a skateboard ramp as well as an in-line skating trail.

The Fort Madison Parks & Recreation Department has several open and enclosed shelters that are suitable for a variety of activities. Contact the Parks Department at 319-372-7700, ext. 201, to make your reservation.
